

Port Lincoln and the Clerk of the Law Courts. Later he travelled around on horse and buggy as far as New South Wales where he bought farming land. His ninth son, Francis, became well known but for the wrong reasons. In 1840 Francis, still a young boy, was camped at Little Swamp. There was a fight between Indigenous people and the white settlers. Francis was the first settler known to be speared and he died a few days later.

4. Did he have any hobbies? There isn't much recorded information but we do know that he was keen on horse riding.
5. Places named after him. Hawson Place, Hawson Park (Little Swamp).
